SBL Citation Examples for Pandoc/Citeproc

Adapted from biblatex-sbl-examples.tex

2026-03-27

Introduction

This document mirrors all the examples from the `biblatex-sbl` package (SBLHS 2nd edition, sections 6.2–6.4 and 7.1–7.3), adapted for pandoc Markdown with citeproc. It serves as both a demonstration and a test document for the SBL citation system.

Each section corresponds to a subsection in the biblatex-sbl-examples.tex file. Examples show first-note citations (full form), subsequent-note citations (short form), and parenthetical citations where applicable. The bibliography is generated automatically by citeproc.

To render this document:

pandoc sbl-examples.md \
  --citeproc \
  --lua-filter=sbl-filter.lua \
  -o output.html

Without the Lua filter, the CSL produces sensible output for all standard entry types. The filter adds shorthand handling, bibliography control, abbreviation list generation, and subsequent note refinements.

Abbreviations

Notes and Bibliographies

General Examples: Books

A Book by a Single Author

The simplest case: author, title (italic), place, publisher, date, and page locator.

First note:[1]

Subsequent:[2]

A Book by Two or Three Authors

All authors are listed in notes; bibliography inverts the first author's name.

[1] Charles H. Talbert, Reading John: A Literary and Theological Commentary on the Fourth Gospel and the Johannine Epistles (New York: Crossroad, 1992), 127.

[2] Talbert, Reading John, 22.

First note:[3]

Subsequent:[4]

A Book by More than Three Authors

More than three authors triggers "et al." in notes; bibliography lists all authors.

First note:[5]

Subsequent:[6]

A Translated Volume

Translator appears after the title in notes ("trans.") and as a separate sentence in bibliography ("Translated by").

First note:[7]

Subsequent:[8]

The Full History of a Translated Volume

Complex chain: reprint of a translation of a German original. CSL handles the current edition with reprint info appended.

First note:[9]

A Book with One Editor

Editor appears with "ed." label; bibliography inverts and uses comma before "ed."

First note:[10]

Subsequent:[11]

A Book with Two or Three Editors

Multiple editors listed with "eds." label. Series abbreviation (RBS) shown in notes.

First note:[12]

Subsequent:[13]

A Book with Four or More Editors

Uses "et al." for editors in notes. Series abbreviation (BASPSup) included.

First note:[14]

A Book with Both Author and Editor

Author is primary; editor shown after title with "ed." in notes, "Edited by" in bibliography.

First note:[15]

A Book with Author, Editor, and Translator

Author, editor, and translator all shown. Note uses abbreviated labels; bibliography uses full verbs.

First note:[16]

A Title in a Modern Work Citing a Nonroman Alphabet

Nonroman text within a title is preserved in brackets with appropriate font.

First note:[17]

An Article in an Edited Volume

Article title in quotation marks, container title (book) in italic, editor after container.

First note:[18]

Subsequent:[19]

An Article in a Festschrift

Same format as edited volume. Festschrift titles may include German or other languages.

First note:[20]

Subsequent:[21]

An Introduction, Preface, or Foreword Written by Someone Other Than the Author

The introduction author is primary; the book author appears after the title with "by".

First note:[22]

Subsequent:[23]

Multiple Publishers for a Single Book

When a book has multiple publishers in different cities, both are listed.

(Bibliography only — see gerhardsson:1961 in the bibliography.)

A Revised Edition

Edition information appears after the title. Numeric editions use ordinal form; textual editions are preserved as-is.

First note:[24]

First note:[25]

A Recent Reprint Title

Current publisher appears first, followed by "repr. of" with original publication details.

First note:[26]

A Reprint Title in the Public Domain

Uses "orig." with just the original year when no original publisher is specified.

First note:[27]

A Forthcoming Book

Uses "forthcoming" instead of a date when the publication status is set.

First note:[28]

Subsequent:[29]

A Multivolume Work

Volume count shown in notes; bibliography includes translator and full date range.
